

Colonoscopy with polypectomy

Aftercare advice

This leaflet explains more about returning to your everyday activities after your endoscopic examination of your large bowel with the removal of a polyp. If you have any further questions, please speak to a doctor or nurse caring for you.

When can I leave hospital?

You will be able to leave hospital when the doctor or nurse looking after you says you are well enough. You will have to wait at least an hour if you have sedation.

The sedation lasts longer than you may think, so in the first 24 hours after your examination you should not

- drive or ride a bicycle/ car
- operate machinery or do anything requiring skill or judgement
- cook
- drink alcohol
- take sleeping tablets
- sign legal documents, make any important decisions, or sign contracts.

If you have had sedation you will need someone to escort you home and we advise that they stay with you for 24 hours.

We will give you a copy of your report and send a copy to your GP the day after your procedure. However, many GPs may not have this report on their system for about 10 days to 2 weeks after your procedure.

After I leave hospital

If you had sedation you should rest at home following your procedure and should be able to carry out your normal activities 24 hours after the test.

If polyps are removed or biopsies are taken during the procedure you may notice a small amount of bleeding from your bowel when you next visit the toilet. This is normal and should settle within 24 hours.

You can take your other prescription drugs.

Will I be in pain?

If you have any bloating or abdominal discomfort this may be from the air that was put into your bowel by the endoscopist during the examination. This is normal and should settle within 24 hours.

If your discomfort doesn't settle, try to pass wind. You can try to move about and change position to help settle the air in your bowel. You can also try warm drinks, or peppermint water (sold over the counter at most Pharmacy's) or peppermint tea.

What should I do if I have a problem?

Call the endoscopy department if you have any questions or concerns. Contact details are listed on the last page of this leaflet.

You should consult your GP or go to your nearest emergency department (A&E) if you develop any of the following symptoms. You should take your endoscopy report with you.

- Severe, persistent or worsening abdominal (tummy) pain
- A fever (temperature above 37.5°C)
- You have black or red poo (known as melaena)
- You are unable to stop vomiting (being sick).
- Difficulty breathing or becoming breathless

If you see traces of blood from your back passage, this could be because you had polyps removed during the examination and this is normal. Blood clots or large amounts of blood are not normal so contact the nurses on the number below or contact your GP. If you are seriously concerned then go to your nearest emergency department (A&E). You should take your endoscopy report with you.

Will I have a follow-up appointment?

The endoscopist or recovery nurses will explain your procedure and explain any next steps before you leave hospital and give you a copy of your report. Sometimes due to the sedation you may be sleepy and not able to remember the details and we are happy to explain by phone at a later date.

If you need a follow up appointment and you do not already have one booked, this will be posted out to you for the next available clinic, or if it is urgent, we arrange this before you leave.

If you have had any samples taken the results will be sent to the Doctor who referred you or they will be reviewed in a virtual clinic and the results will be sent to your GP. A virtual clinic is where a gastroenterologist or surgeon will review your notes and results rather than have you attend a face to face appointment. You will be sent a letter from this clinic with your outcome and results of any biopsies and next steps such as being discharged back to your GP or a follow up review in clinic.

IMPORTANT Please do not contact the Endoscopy Unit for your biopsy results as they are unable to give them to you. If you have not received your results within 4 weeks please contact the numbers below. If on your report your follow up is:

- Surgical Virtual Clinic (SVC), please call 020 7188 7188 ext. 53075
- Gastroenterology Virtual Clinic (GVC), please call 020 7188 7188 ext. 87790
