Reimbursement of expenses for living kidney donors

This leaflet explains how to claim for reimbursement of expenses for living kidney donors or anyone undergoing investigations to assess their suitability to be a living kidney donor. If you have any further questions, please speak to your living donor coordinator, contact details can be found at the end of this leaflet.

What is donor reimbursement?
To become a living kidney donor you will need to attend hospital for several appointments and investigations. If you are found to be a suitable donor, you will also need a period of time after the operation to recover. It is possible to submit a claim for reimbursement of loss of earnings, travel costs and other relevant expenses that you may have incurred.

Any claims that you submit will be assessed on an individual basis by NHS England. This is in line with the NHS England policy document, Commissioning policy: reimbursement of expenses for living donors (reference: NHS England A06/P/a). You can find this on the NHS England website, www.england.nhs.uk. You may wish to read this document for more detailed information on the reimbursement process.

Any payment for donating a human organ is illegal under the Human Tissue Act 2004. However, this Act supports the reimbursement of reasonable expenses for travel, loss of earnings and other expenses if directly attributable to the organ donation process.

When should I start my reimbursement claim?
Once you start the investigations to assess your suitability as a donor, you will need to keep receipts of any expenses you have incurred to support your reimbursement claim. For example, keep any train tickets, parking receipts and any letters from your employer confirming the level of sick pay you will get if you become a donor.

If I have had investigations and found out that I am not suitable to donate my kidney, can I claim for reimbursement?
You may submit a reimbursement claim for travelling expenses and parking. In exceptional circumstances additional reimbursement costs may be considered.

If I am in the paired/pooled list as part of the national living donor kidney sharing scheme, can I claim for reimbursement?
Yes, you can make a claim depending upon where you live in the UK; this will be submitted to the relevant commissioner.
I am an altruistic donor; can I claim for reimbursement?
Yes, the relevant commissioner for the recipient of your donated kidney will be responsible for dealing with your claim.

I am an overseas donor, can I claim for reimbursement?
Yes, provided you plan to donate to someone who lives in the UK and is entitled to NHS treatment. Your living donor coordinator will inform NHS England as soon as you arrive in the UK.

You may claim for travel, reasonable accommodation and visa costs (including extension), but not for living expenses such as food.

What documents will I need to make a claim for reimbursement?
You will need to provide proof of:

- current employment status and income, including pay slips
- details about any benefits you currently receive or may receive following the donation and confirmation of loss of benefits
- if employed, you will need to obtain a letter from your employer confirming the arrangements for work absence, sick pay, unpaid leave and partial pay
- if self-employed, you will need to provide details of gross income (before tax) from the last year
- travel tickets/receipts (for yourself only at standard class) or mileage travelled by car including parking, toll and congestion charges. Taxi fares will only be reimbursed for use in the post-operative period
- any other receipts, for example, accommodation, prescription costs or child care.

Who can help me make a reimbursement claim?
Your living donor coordinator will discuss the donor reimbursement process with you at the start of your assessment. You will need to complete the claim form yourself and obtain all the relevant documentation to support your claim.

How to make a claim

- Inform your living donor coordinator as soon as possible.
- Provide a letter from your employer confirming the level of sick pay you will get if you decide to donate.
- Ensure you are claiming any other reimbursements you may be entitled to, for example statutory sick pay or help with travel costs, etc.
- Ensure all supporting evidence/documentation is collected and submitted with the claim.
- Ensure the claim form and final checklist are fully and accurately completed and signed before submitting it to your living donor coordinator.
- Submit the claim form within a maximum of 28 days from the date of donation once the donation date has been scheduled.
- Inform NHS England if you return to work whilst you are receiving reimbursement or if you have been overpaid.
What happens after I have submitted my reimbursement claim?

Your living donor coordinator will:
- inform NHS England of any potential reimbursement claims
- check and confirm the appointment dates on your claim form
- send the claim form and relevant evidence provided by the donor to NHS England.

NHS England will:
- confirm prior approval of the claim in principle
- acknowledge receipt of your reimbursement claim
- approve payment of the claim within 28 working days
- contact you directly if further information is required regarding the claim
- ensure the claim is approved so that payment can start from your scheduled operation date.

Who makes the final decision on a reimbursement claim?

NHS England will make the final decision on any reimbursement claim after looking at the evidence that you supplied with your claim form.

Can my claim be rejected?

All claims will be scrutinised to prevent fraudulent or inappropriate claims being authorised. If evidence submitted with your claim is insufficient you may be asked by NHS England to provide further information or evidence.

How much will I be reimbursed?

This will vary according to your individual circumstances. You should not be financially worse off as a result of the donation process, but neither should you make any financial gain as this would constitute payment for donation which is illegal. Travel costs for donors can be reimbursed and will be calculated on the basis of the cheapest and most appropriate mode of public transport. Reasonable reimbursement of accommodation charges will be made.

When will I receive my reimbursement?

NHS England will process your claim and aim to have it approved within 28 working days so that payment can be made once NHS England is notified that the donation has gone ahead.

What should I do if I return to work while I am being reimbursed?

If you return to work during your period of reimbursement you must inform NHS England and they will notify you of the appropriate amount you will need to repay.
