Pramipexole for restless legs syndrome

The purpose of this leaflet is to provide you with some information about pramipexole, which has been prescribed to treat your restless legs syndrome (RLS). If you have any questions or concerns, please speak to a doctor or nurse caring for you.

What is pramipexole?
Pramipexole belongs to a group of medicines which trigger nerve impulses in the brain that help to control body movements. Pramipexole is used to treat the symptoms of RLS. It works by reducing muscle activity during sleep.

How do I take the medicine?
For the treatment of RLS, pramipexole is taken once a day at night, two to three hours before bedtime. It should be taken by mouth (orally) with or without food. Swallow the tablet(s) whole with a glass of water. Keep taking the medicine until your doctor tells you otherwise. Stopping suddenly can cause problems and your doctor will want you to reduce your dose gradually if you need to stop treatment.

What should I do if I forget to take the medicine?
If you forget to take the dose before you fall asleep, don’t worry. Take the next dose when it is due. Do not take an extra dose the following evening to make up for a missed dose.

Are there any side effects?
The following are examples of some of the side effects reported by patients taking pramipexole.

For further information on side effects, please see the manufacturer's leaflet that comes with the medicine.
Important: if you experience any of the following symptoms, contact your GP for advice as soon as possible:
- Impulsive types of behaviour (such as an increased desire to gamble, binge eat, or an increased sex drive).

If any of the side effects persist or become a problem, please contact your GP/consultant or pharmacist for advice.

Is there anything else I need to know?
Do not take alcohol with pramipexole as alcohol can make the drowsiness worse.

There is a risk of developing worsening RLS symptoms when taking Pramipexole. Please let your GP know if your symptoms are deteriorating, occurring earlier in the day and or in different parts of your body.

If you are a driver, please be aware that pramipexole may affect your reactions and ability to drive. It is an offence to drive while your reactions are impaired. Even if your driving ability is not impaired, if you drive, you are advised to carry some evidence with you which shows that the medicine has been prescribed for you – a repeat prescription form or the patient information leaflet from the packet is generally considered suitable.

Pramipexole should be kept out of reach of children. If anyone other than you takes this medicine, you, they, or their parent/carer should contact NHS 111 for advice. If they are unwell then they should call for an ambulance.

The expiry date is printed on the container. Do not use the medicine after this date. The remainder should be returned to your local pharmacy to be discarded.

Pregnancy and breastfeeding:
We do not recommend the use of this medicine if you are pregnant or breastfeeding. You should let your consultant know if you are planning a pregnancy so that a management plan can be agreed. If you discover that you are pregnant, please contact your consultant for advice as soon as possible.

Sleep hygiene: Taking pramipexole is not a replacement for a good sleep routine. It is still important to aim to get around seven to eight hours of sleep at night if possible. It is advisable to go to bed when tired, and get up at about the same time each day.

Can I take pramipexole with other medicines?
Pramipexole may interact with some medicines. It is important to let us know about any medicines that you are currently taking, so that we can check pramipexole is suitable for you. If you are buying any medicines over the counter from a pharmacy always mention that you have been prescribed pramipexole. It is safe to take ibuprofen or paracetamol with this medicine. Seek advice from a pharmacist when buying herbal or homeopathic remedies.

How will my treatment be reviewed?
Your treatment will be reviewed on an ongoing basis and the dose adjusted in response to your symptoms.

How do I get a repeat prescription?
Your GP will give you a repeat prescription for pramipexole, which you can take to your local pharmacy for supply. Please make sure you request your repeat prescription early enough to prevent your supply running out or risking missing any doses of your medication.
